

This lung cancer patient can't stop smoking. Because she never started.

There's no question that millions of lung cancer patients have died because of smoking.

But it's also true that over 50 percent of the people now being diagnosed with lung cancer are non-smokers or former smokers.

In spite of this, the stigma of smoking is still so great that lung cancer is underfunded, under-researched, and generally ignored by Congress.

Even though lung cancer kills more people than breast, prostate, colon, liver, melanoma, and kidney cancer.

Combined.

It's time to end this.

It's time to treat lung cancer research with the same urgency that we bring to every other major cancer.

Because the most lethal cancer in the country can no longer be hidden behind a smoke screen.

NO MORE EXCUSES. NO MORE LUNG CANCER.
